

Savannah Maxwell wins “New Advisor” Award from Texas A&M University

The Department of Economics is proud to announce that Savannah Maxwell, an Academic Advisor in the department, has won the Texas A&M University “New Advisor” award for the 2016-2017 school year.

The “New Advisor” Award recognizes and rewards novice professional advising staff who embody the spirit of caring, compassionate, skillful advisement, and genuine concern for the welfare of individual students.

Savannah was selected over numerous other advisors based on the following criteria:

1. Performed as an academic advisor for two (2) years or less as of January 1 of the award year.
2. Exhibits a caring, compassionate spirit, skillful academic advisement, and genuine concern for the individual student.
3. Directly assists students in making academic, developmental, career and life planning decisions regarding his/her academic program.
4. Monitors student’s progress toward academic and career goals.
5. Demonstrates a mastery of institutional rules, regulations, policies, and procedures.
6. Evidence of ability to engage in, promote, and support developmental advising.
7. Actively participates in advisor development programs.

Savannah will receive a plaque and a cash award at the UAC Awards Breakfast in May.