

On Wednesday 26 September, the Texas A&M Department of Economics staff went to the Aggieland Humane Society to drop off over 200 pounds of blankets, pet food, cat litter and other items.

Every quarter, the ECON staff pick a different charity in which to donate time or resources. This quarter, Lynn Drake (Business Coordinator III) selected the Aggieland Humane Society for the charitable event. ECON faculty, staff and graduate students all chipped in to donate everything from pet cages to chew toys, cat litter, office supplies and even homemade blankets.

Lynn said that she chose the Humane Society because “I love animals and wanted to find some way to give animals in the shelter a little happiness while they are waiting to be adopted”.

The Aggieland Humane Society was so excited about the quantity of the donations that they posted a short video and pictures of the ECON staff’s donation on their Facebook page:
